MANDALAS
are powerful, symmetrical symbols
that represent harmony, balance and unity.
They've been used for thousands of years and appear throughout nature, from seashells to snowflakes.

The mandalas in this book are special because they are the first ones ever to be created from trees.

The MAKING OF A TREE MANDALA:

For as long as I can remember, trees have been special to me.
As a photographer and color therapist, I've spent years capturing the many shades of leaves and blossoms to create therapeutic tools directly from the colors of nature.

One winter day the trees captured me in a whole new way.
The bare branches inspited me to envision a new illustration method that would allow me to create line art directly from photos of their graceful silhouettes.

The 'how' wasn't clear, but I was driven to make it happen.

This process of cutting, pasting, overlay and eraser-drawing took a very long time - many times longer than if I'd used my art background to draw conventional images.

The result of my labout of love is this collection of TREE MANDALAS.

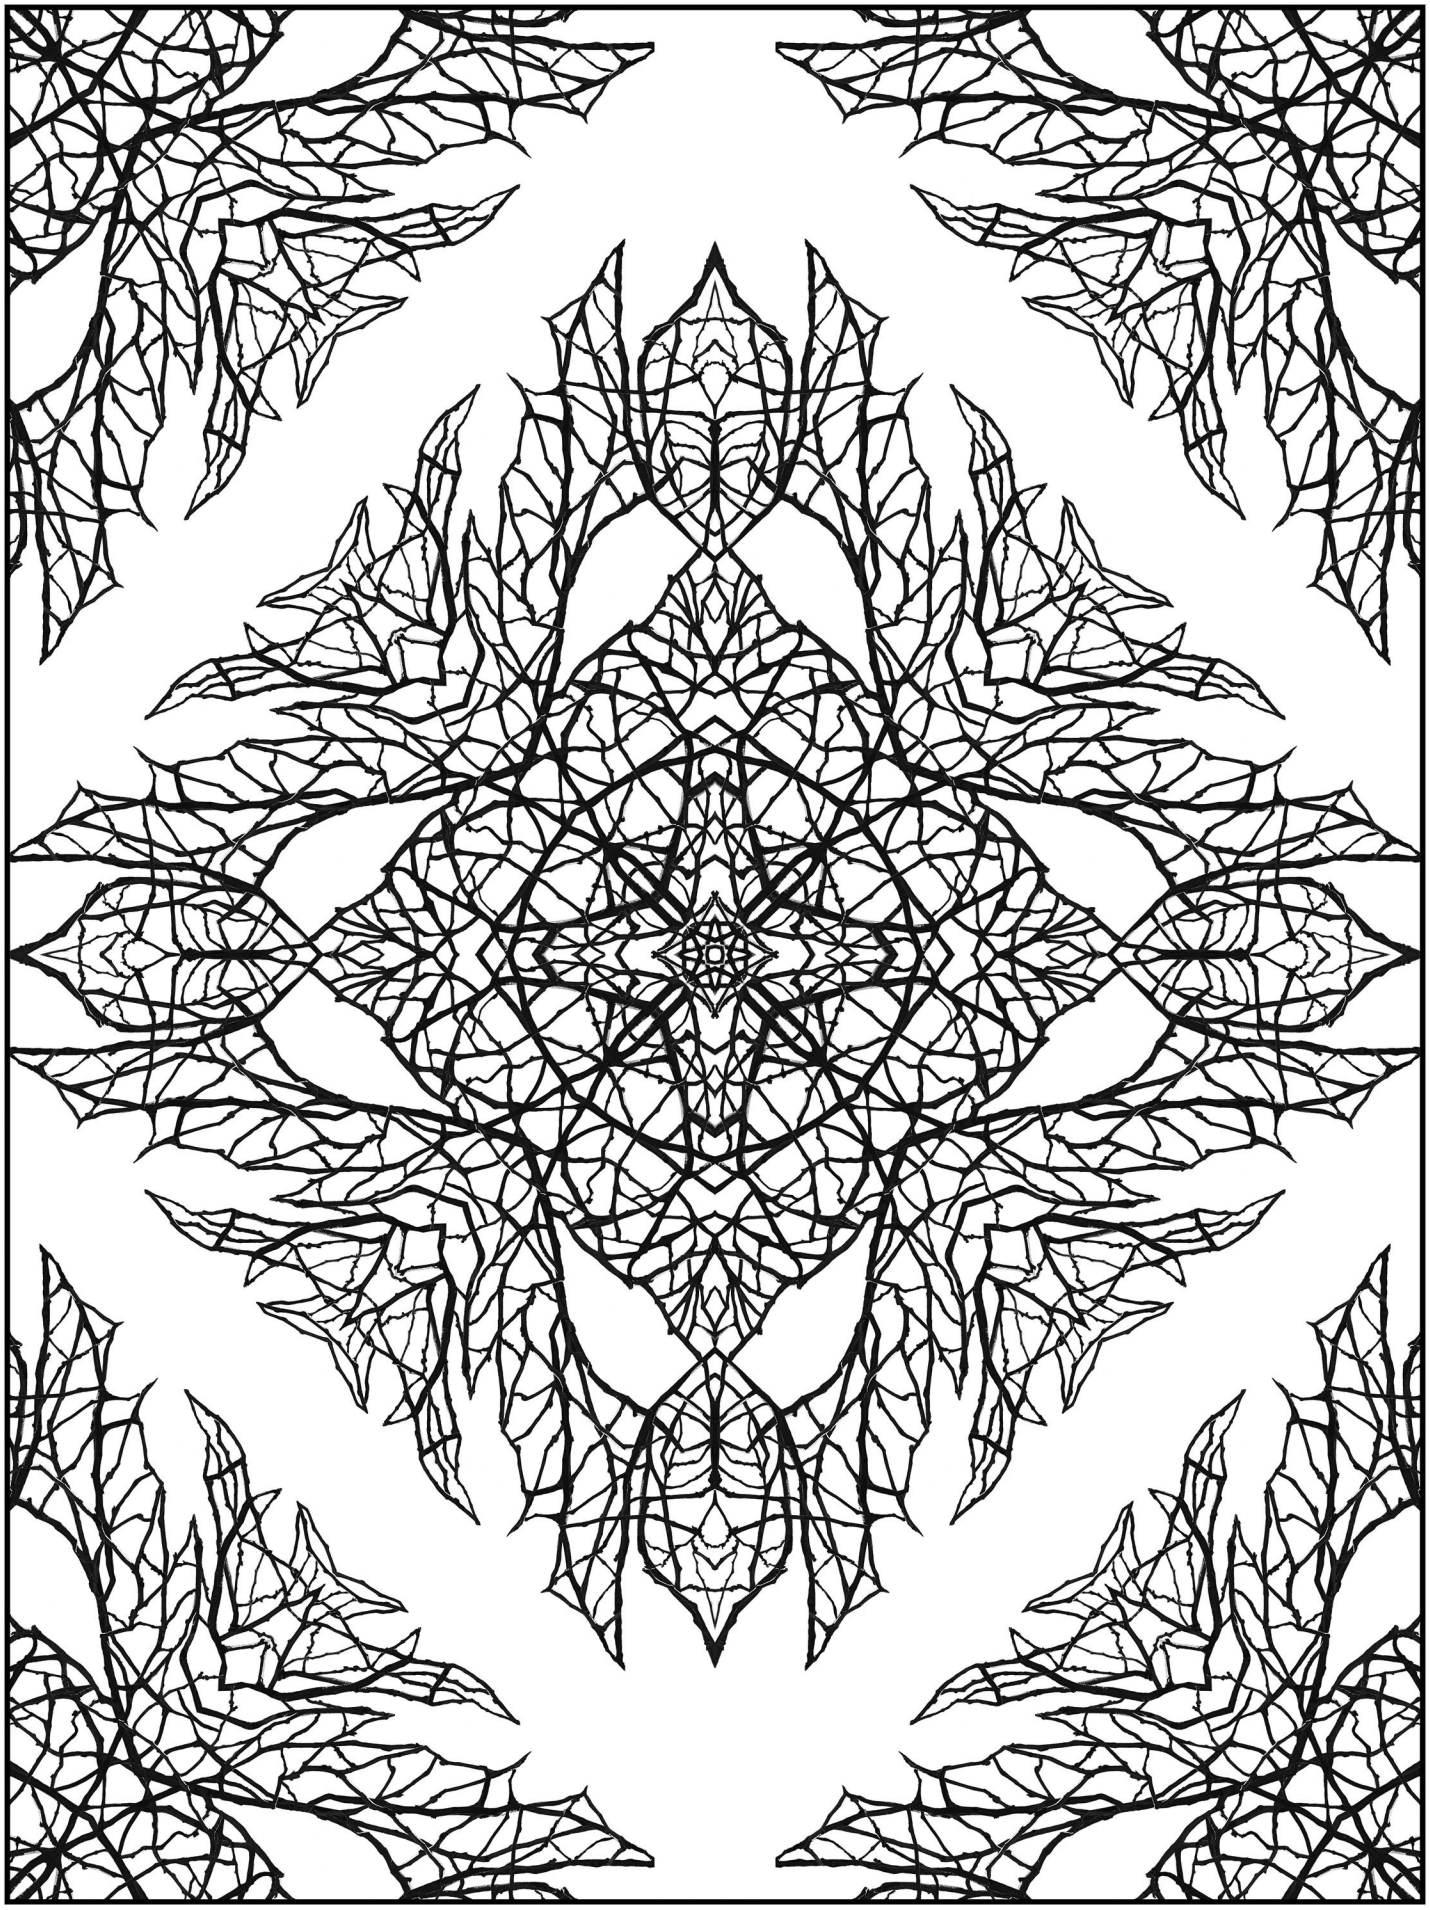
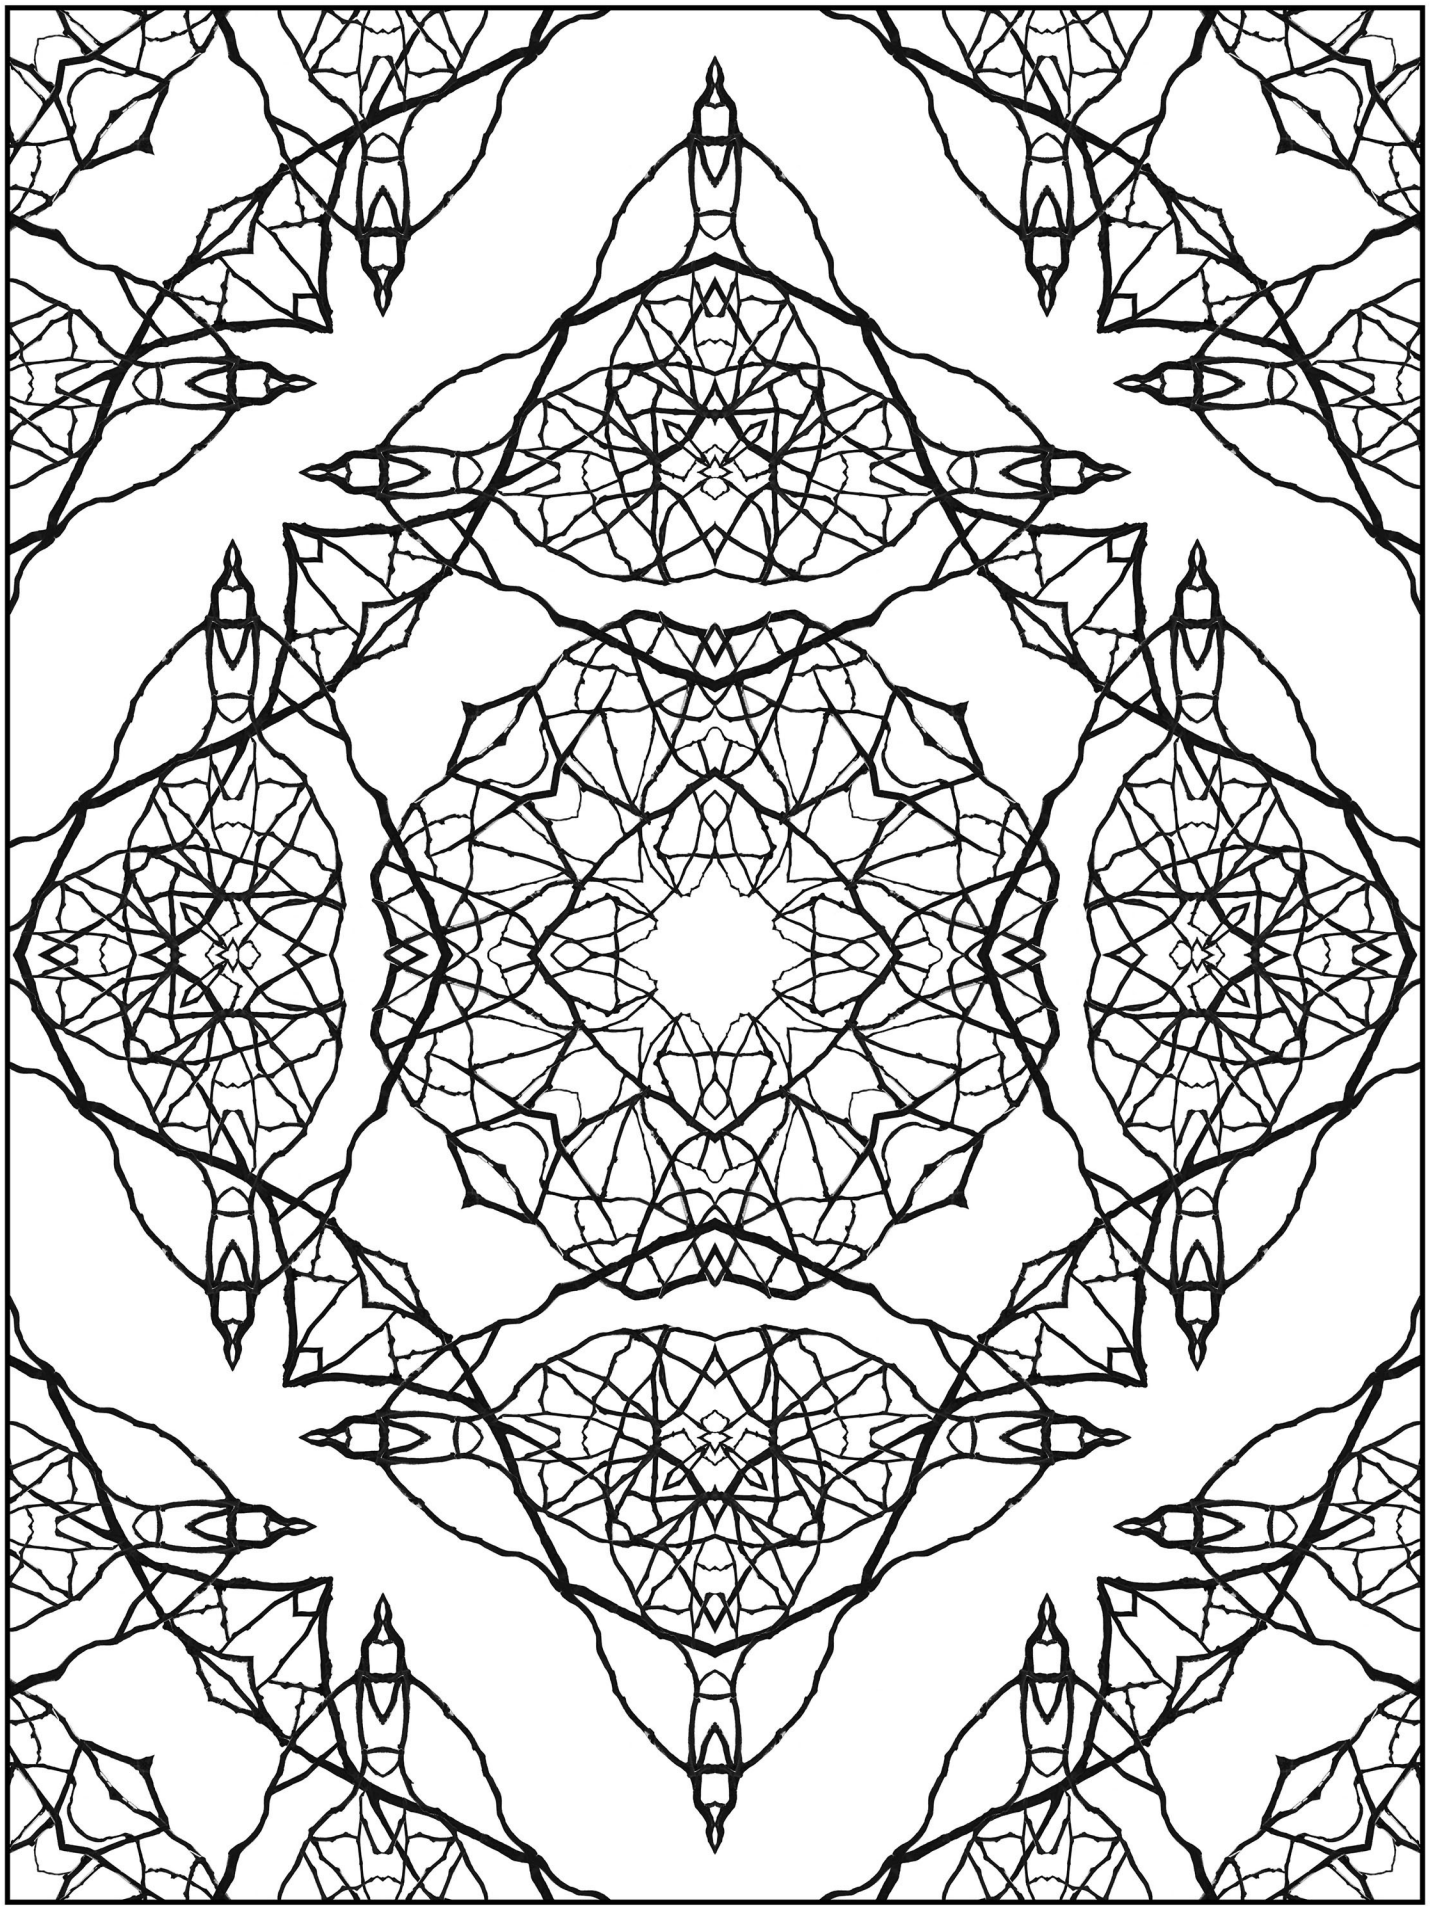
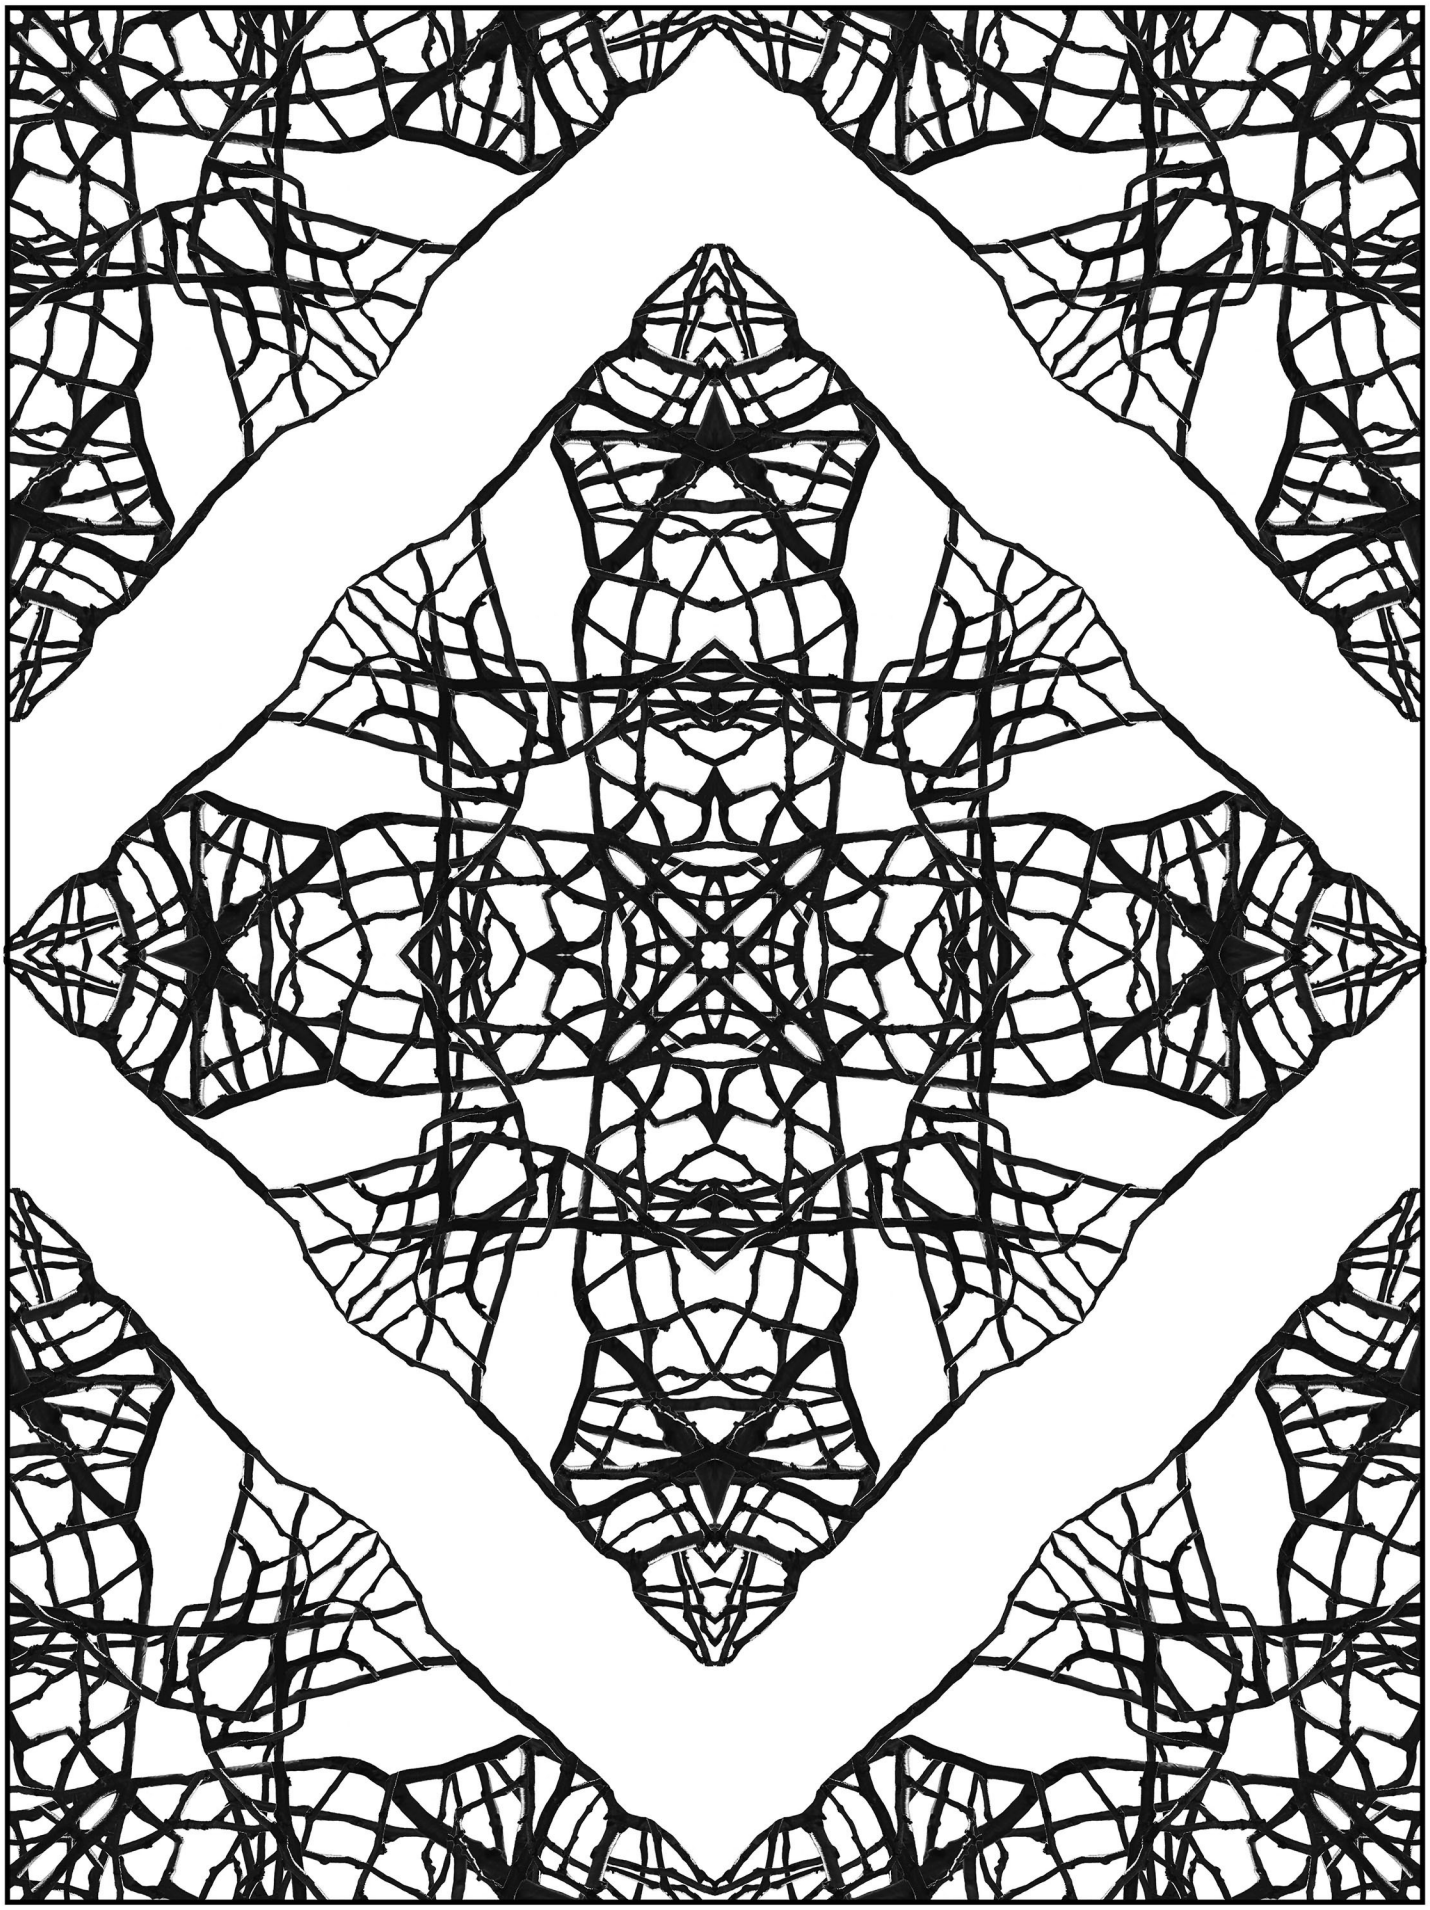
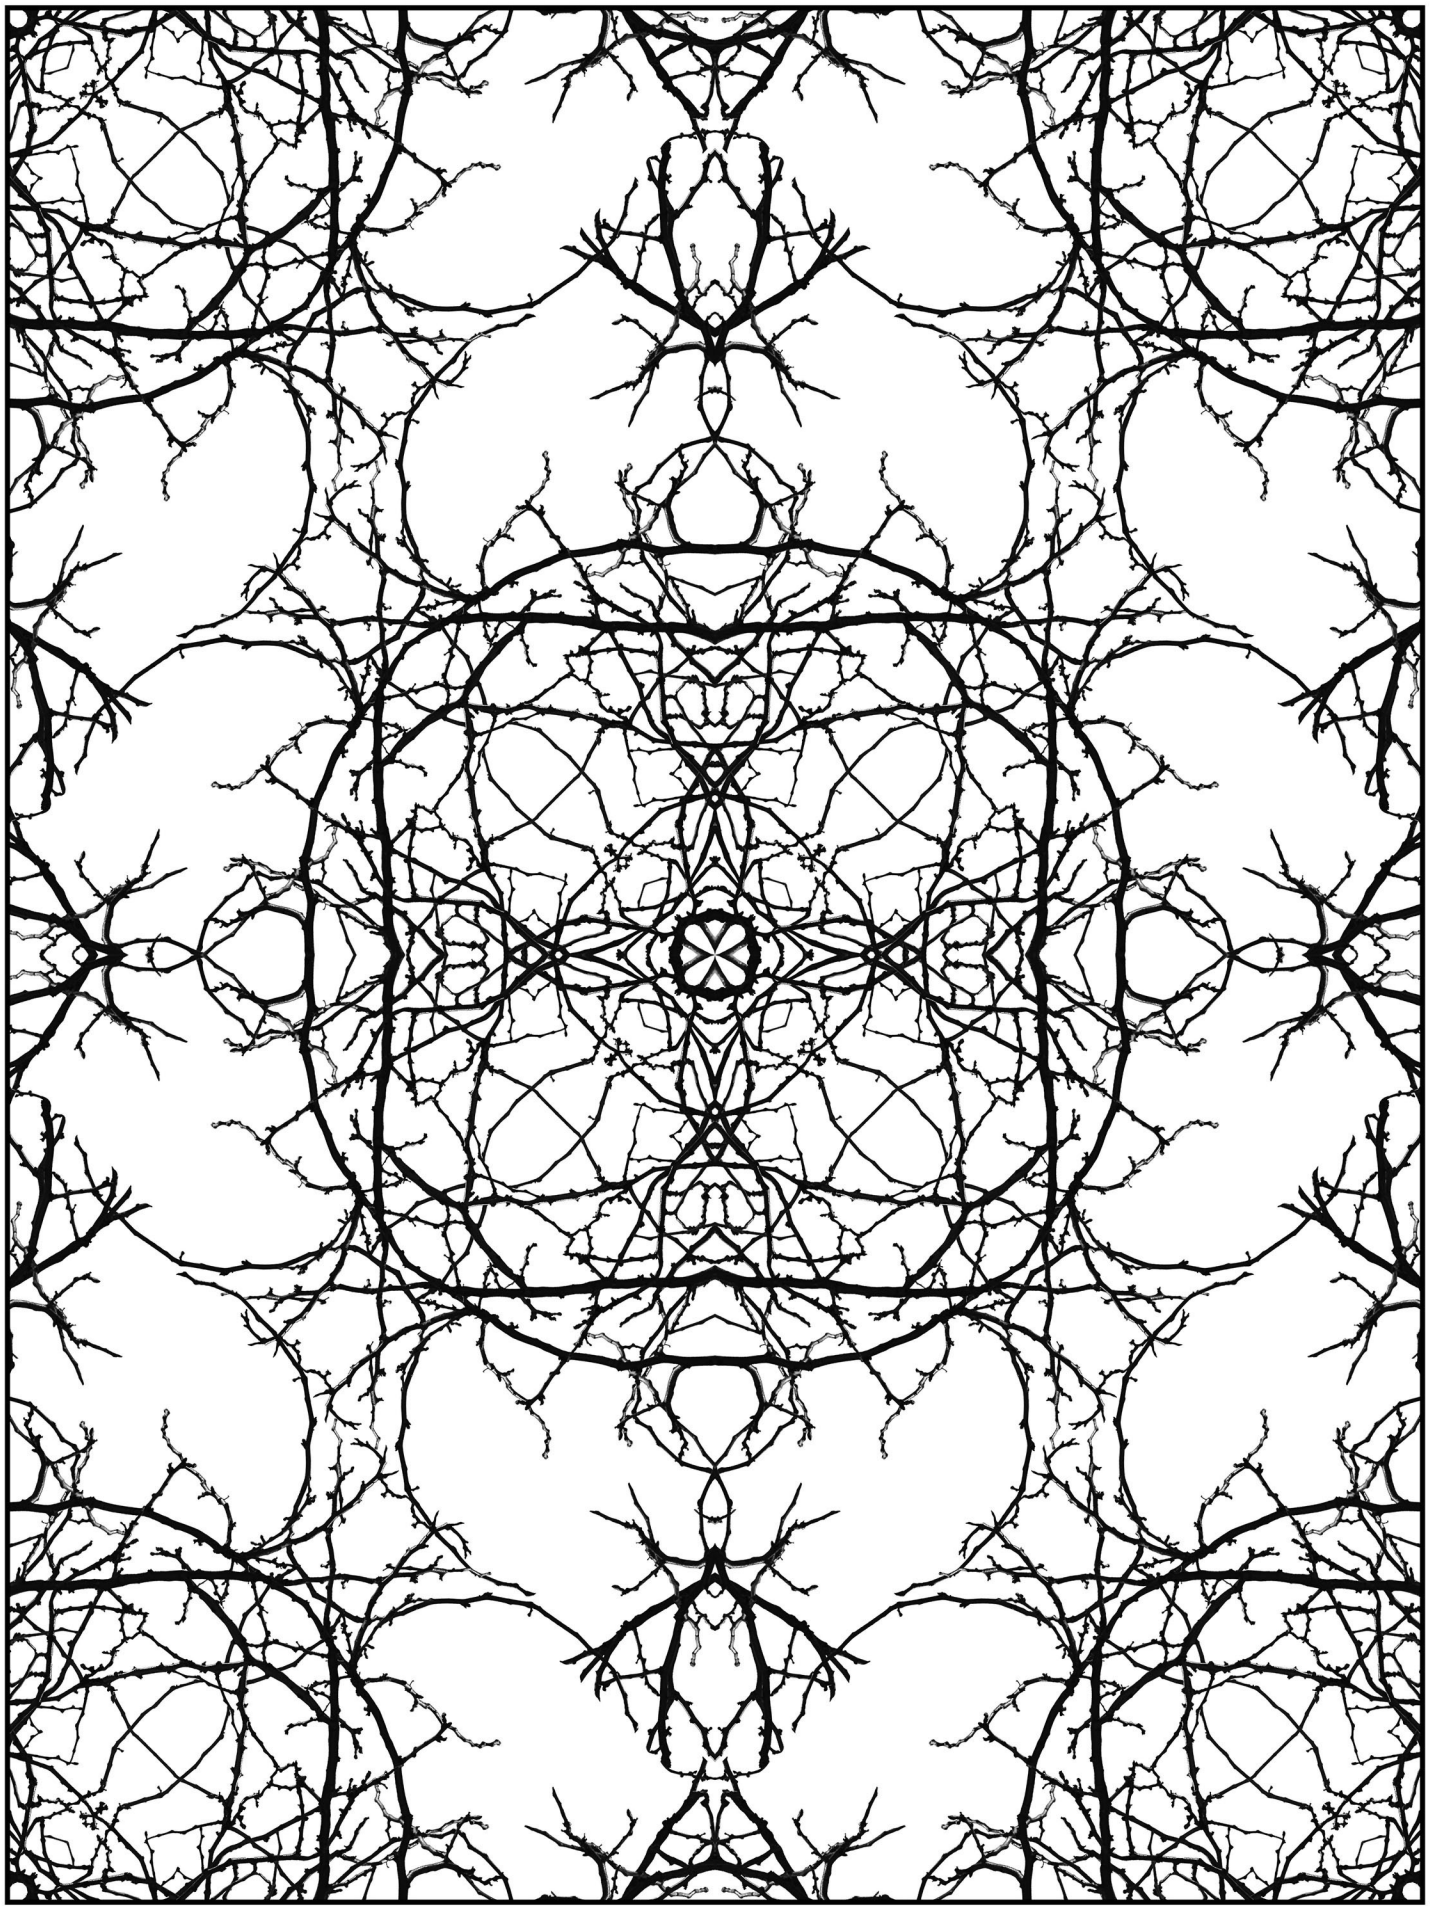
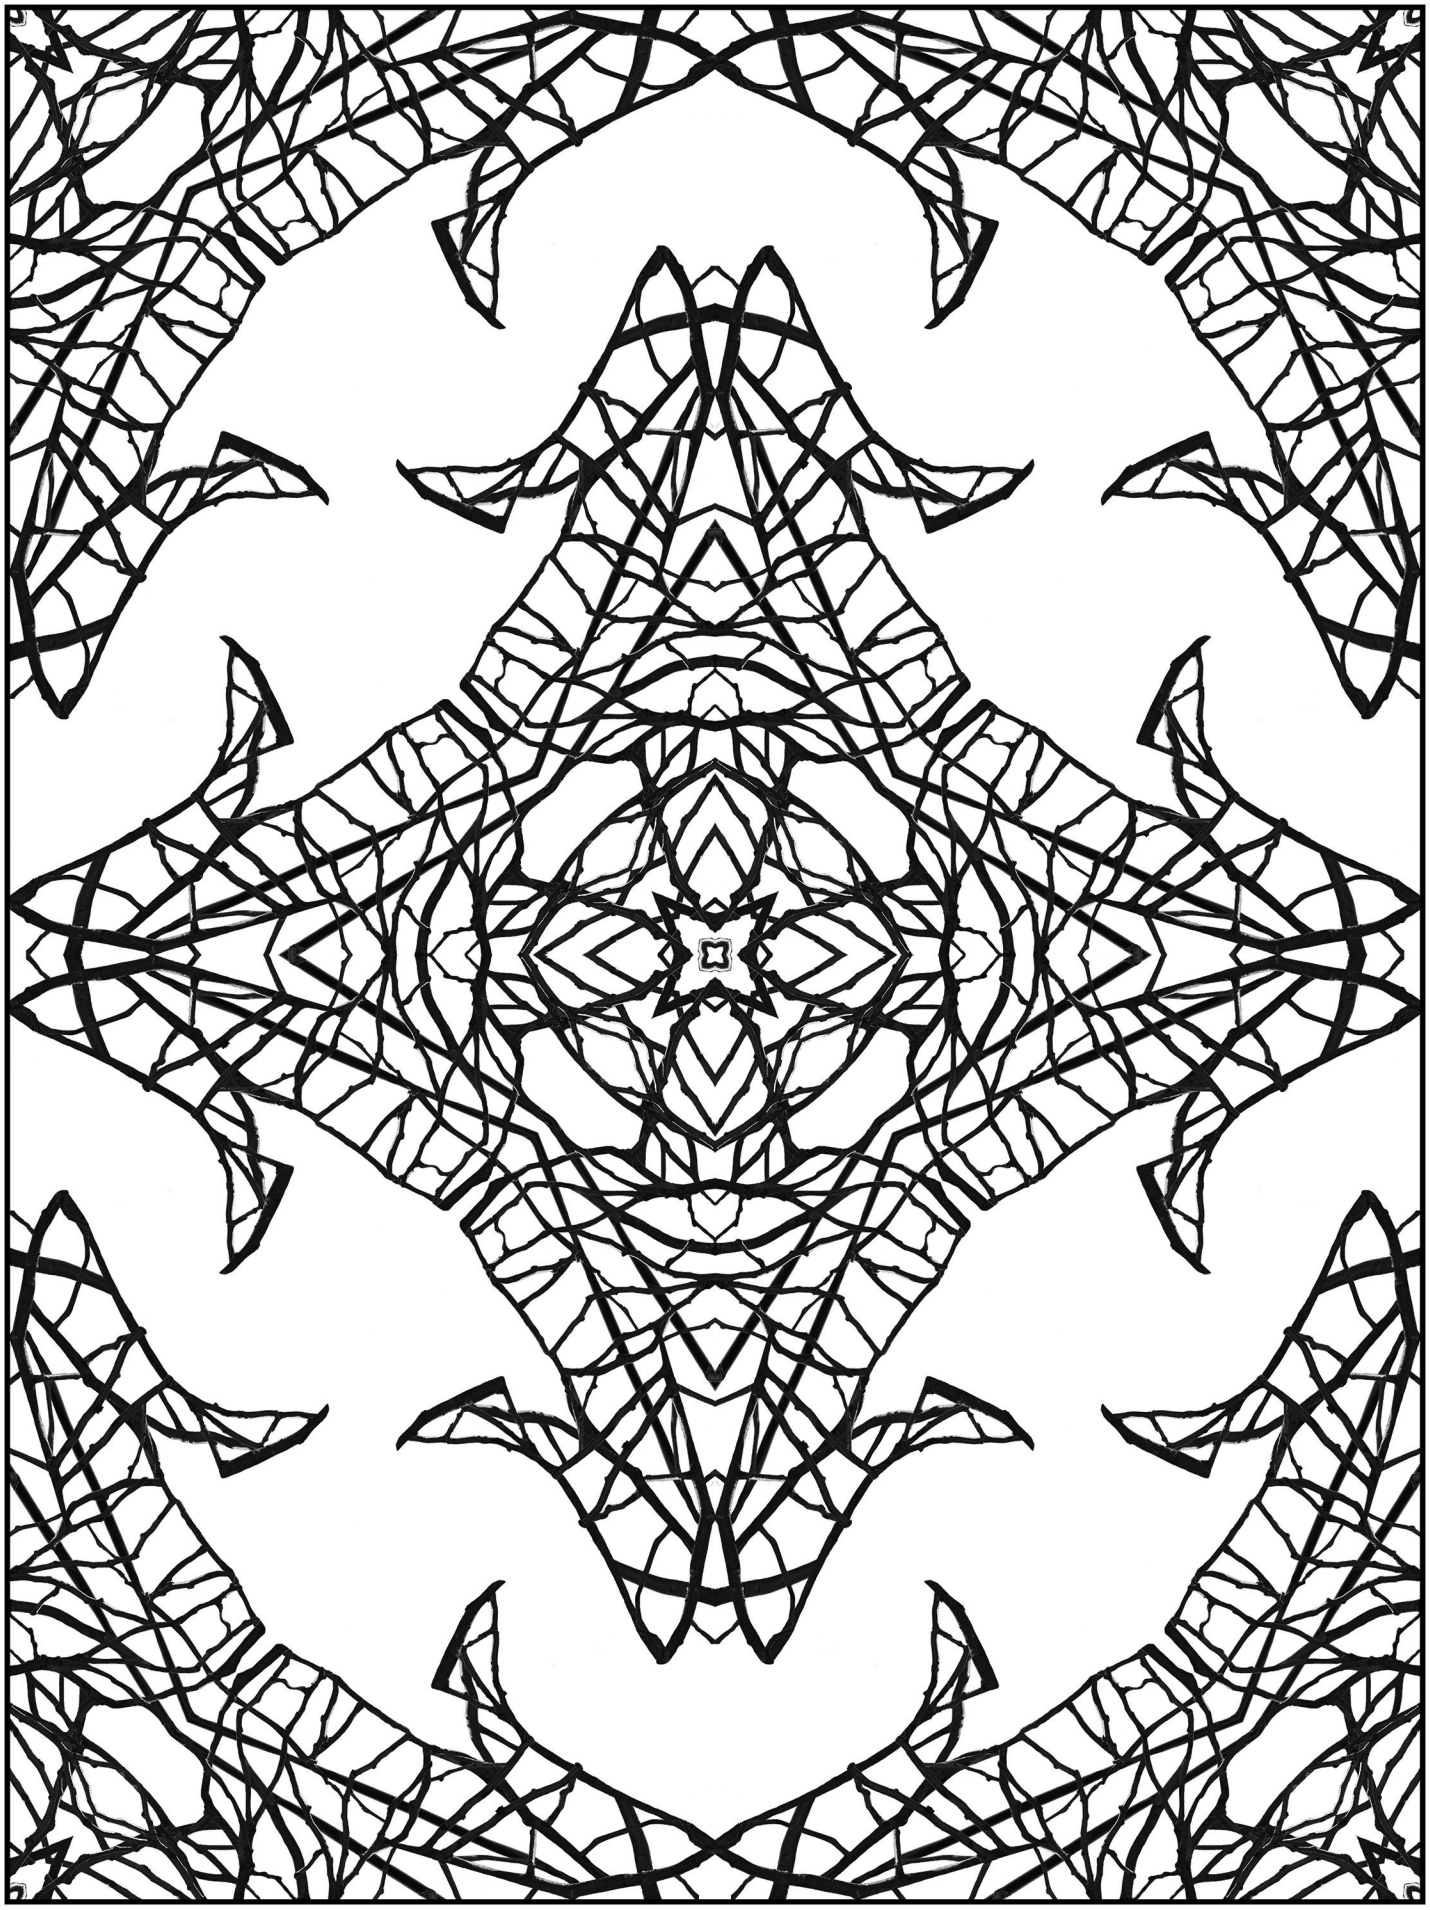
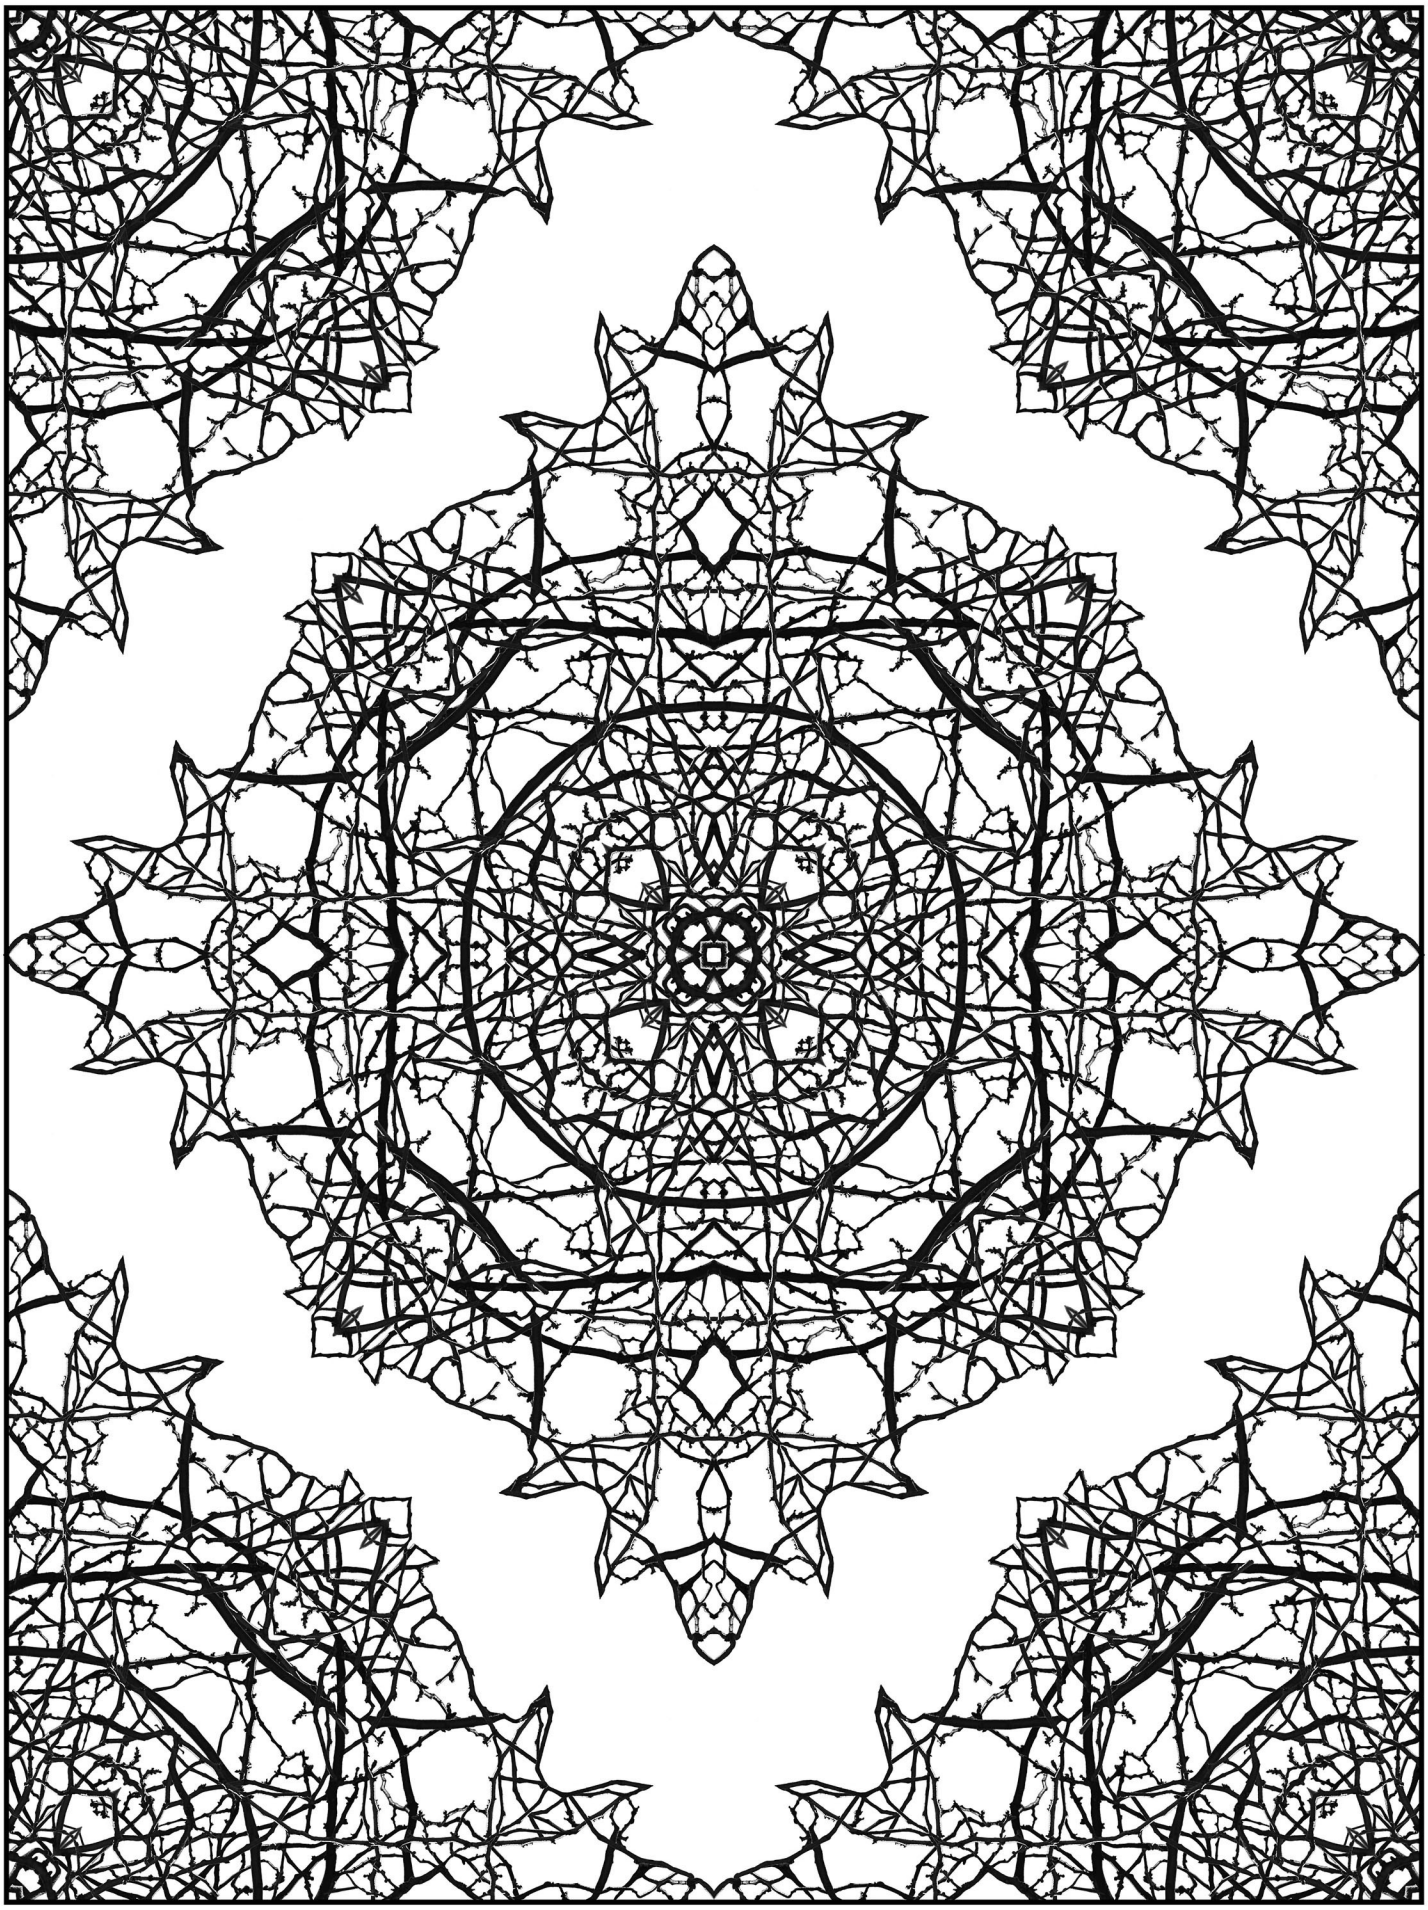
Infused with the powerful energy of nature itself,
they will help you de-stress, decompress and
color your way to joy.


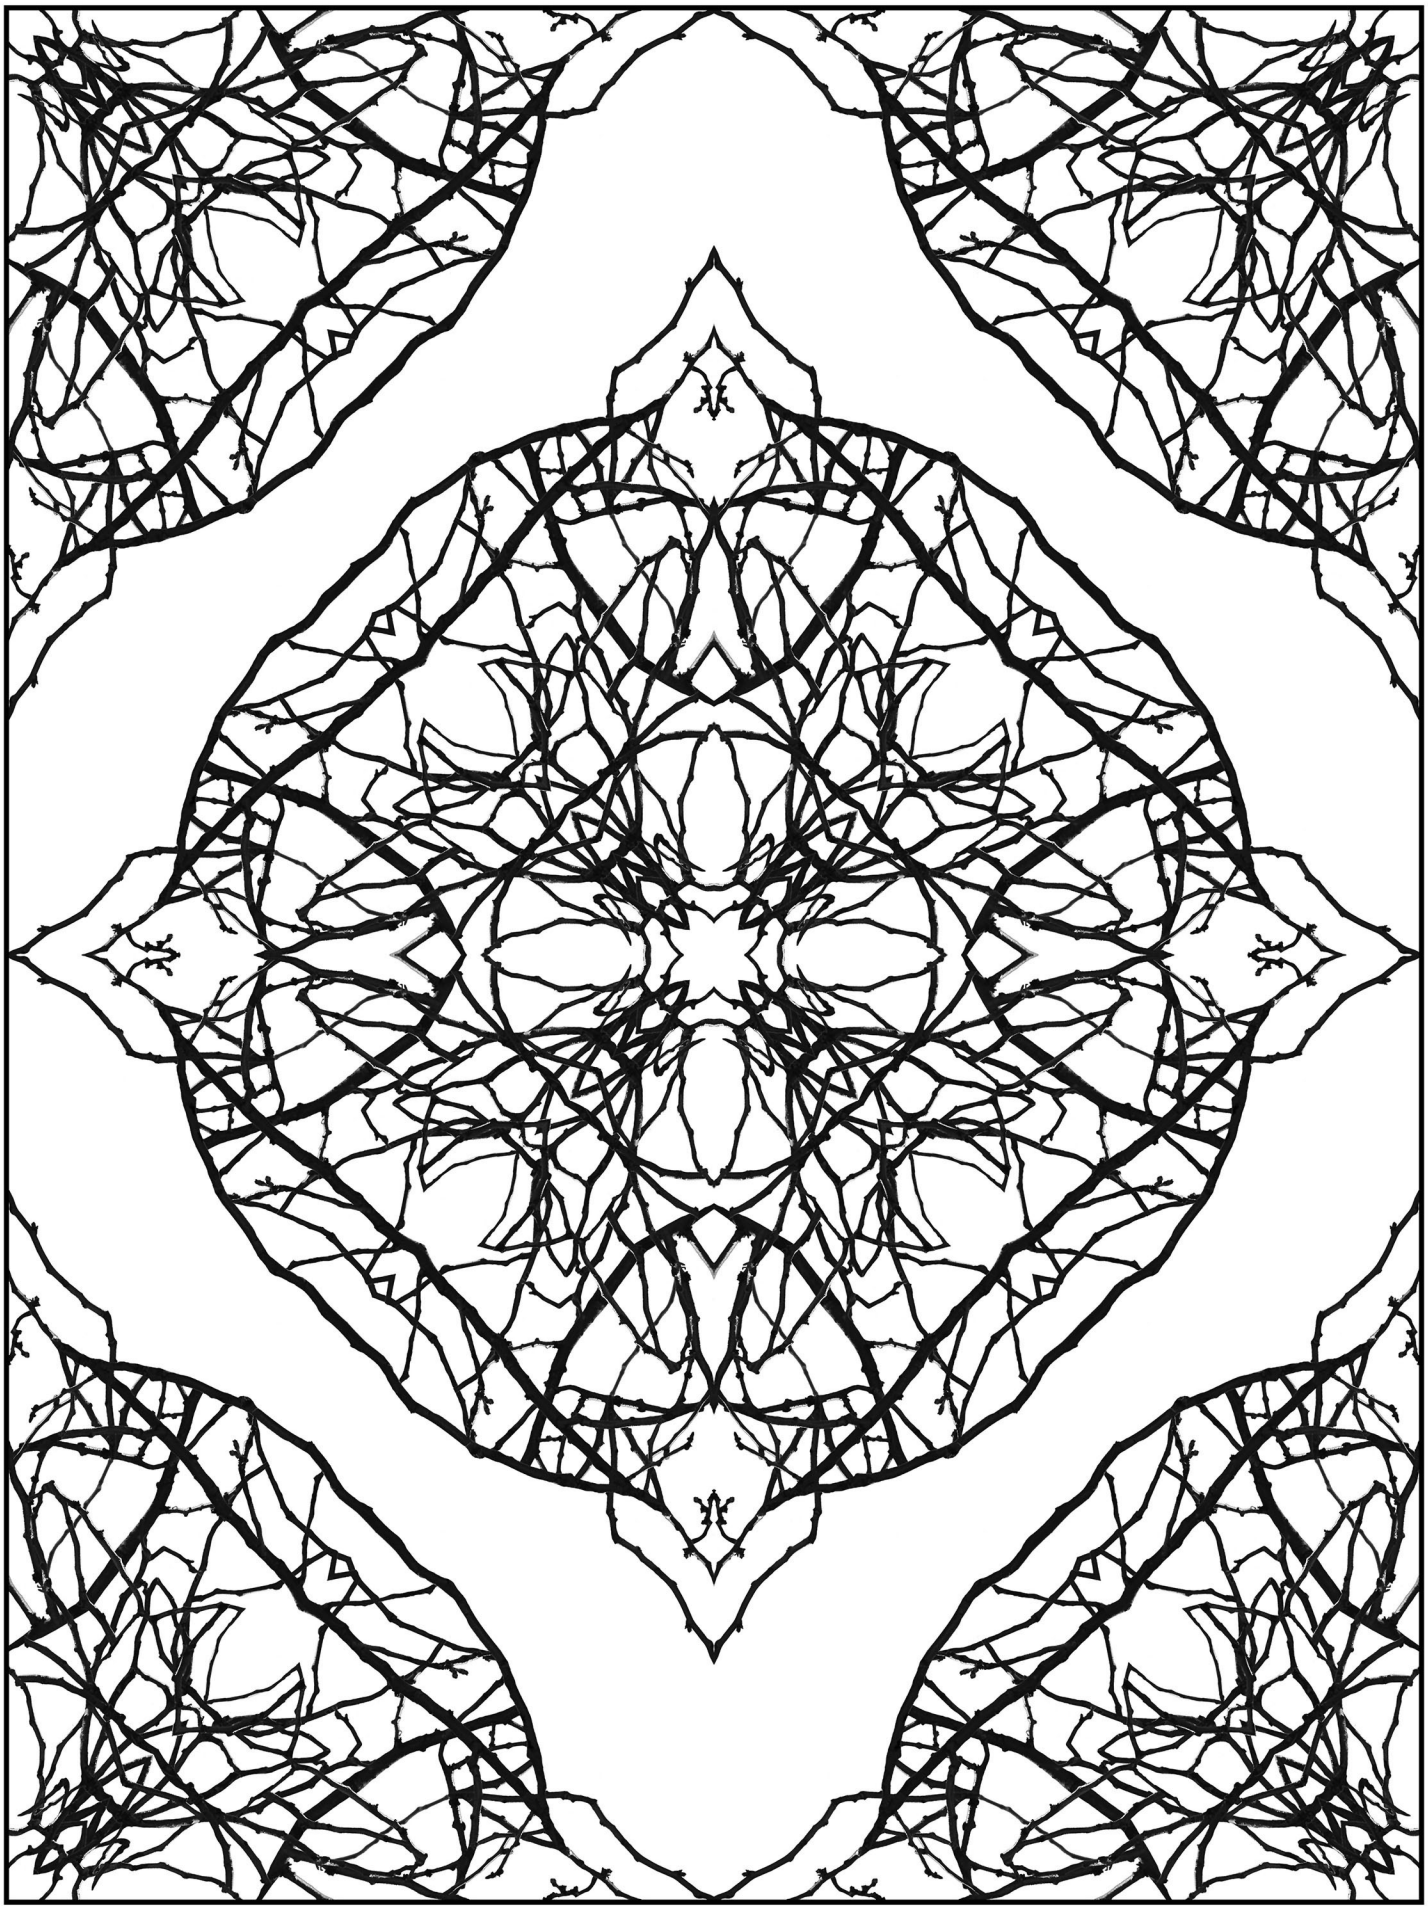


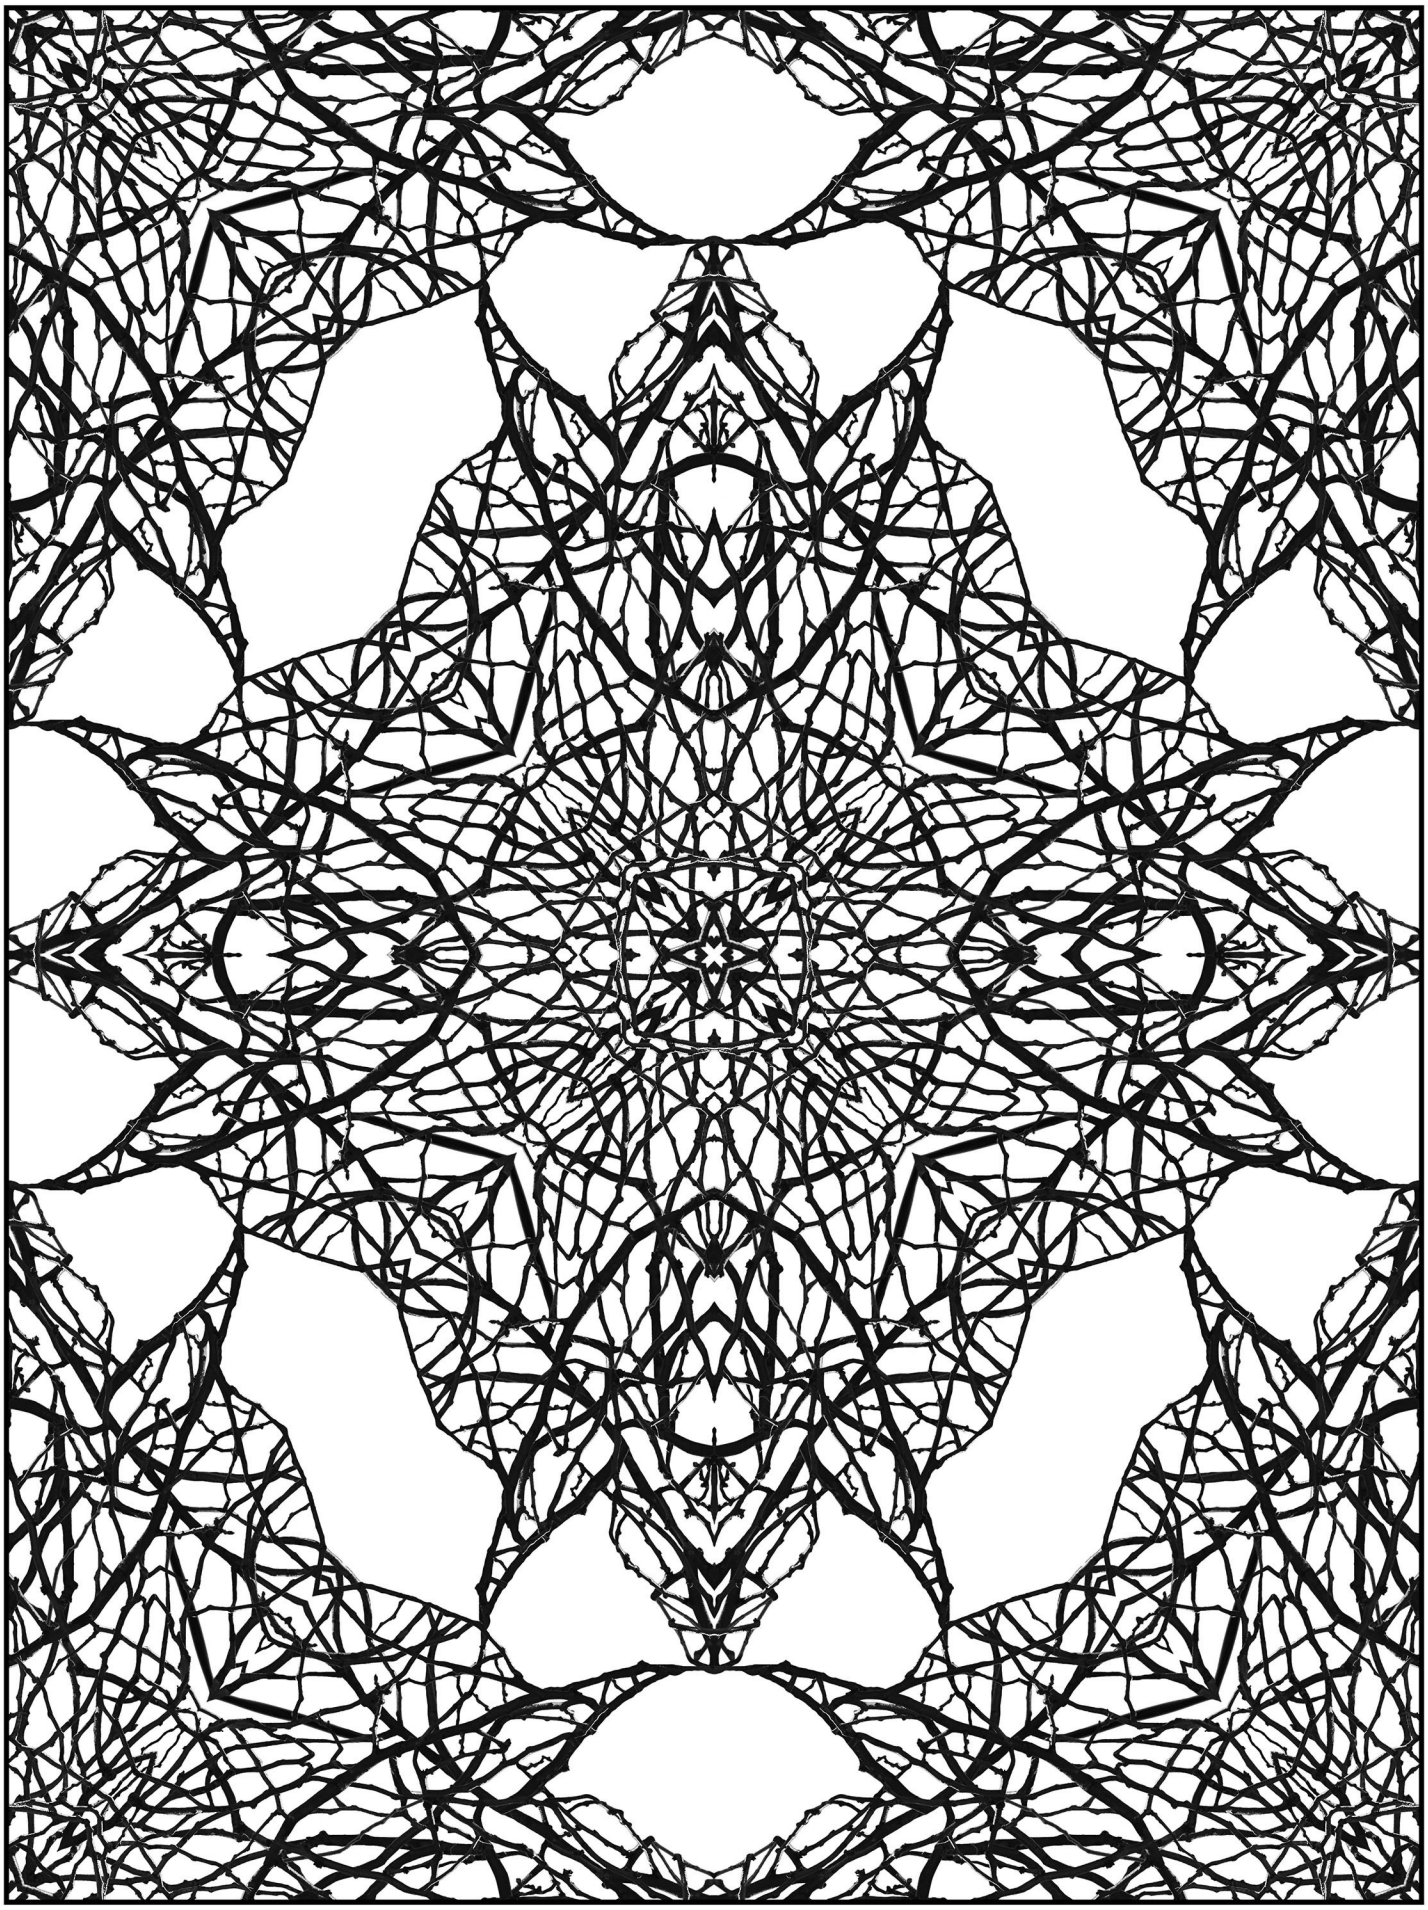


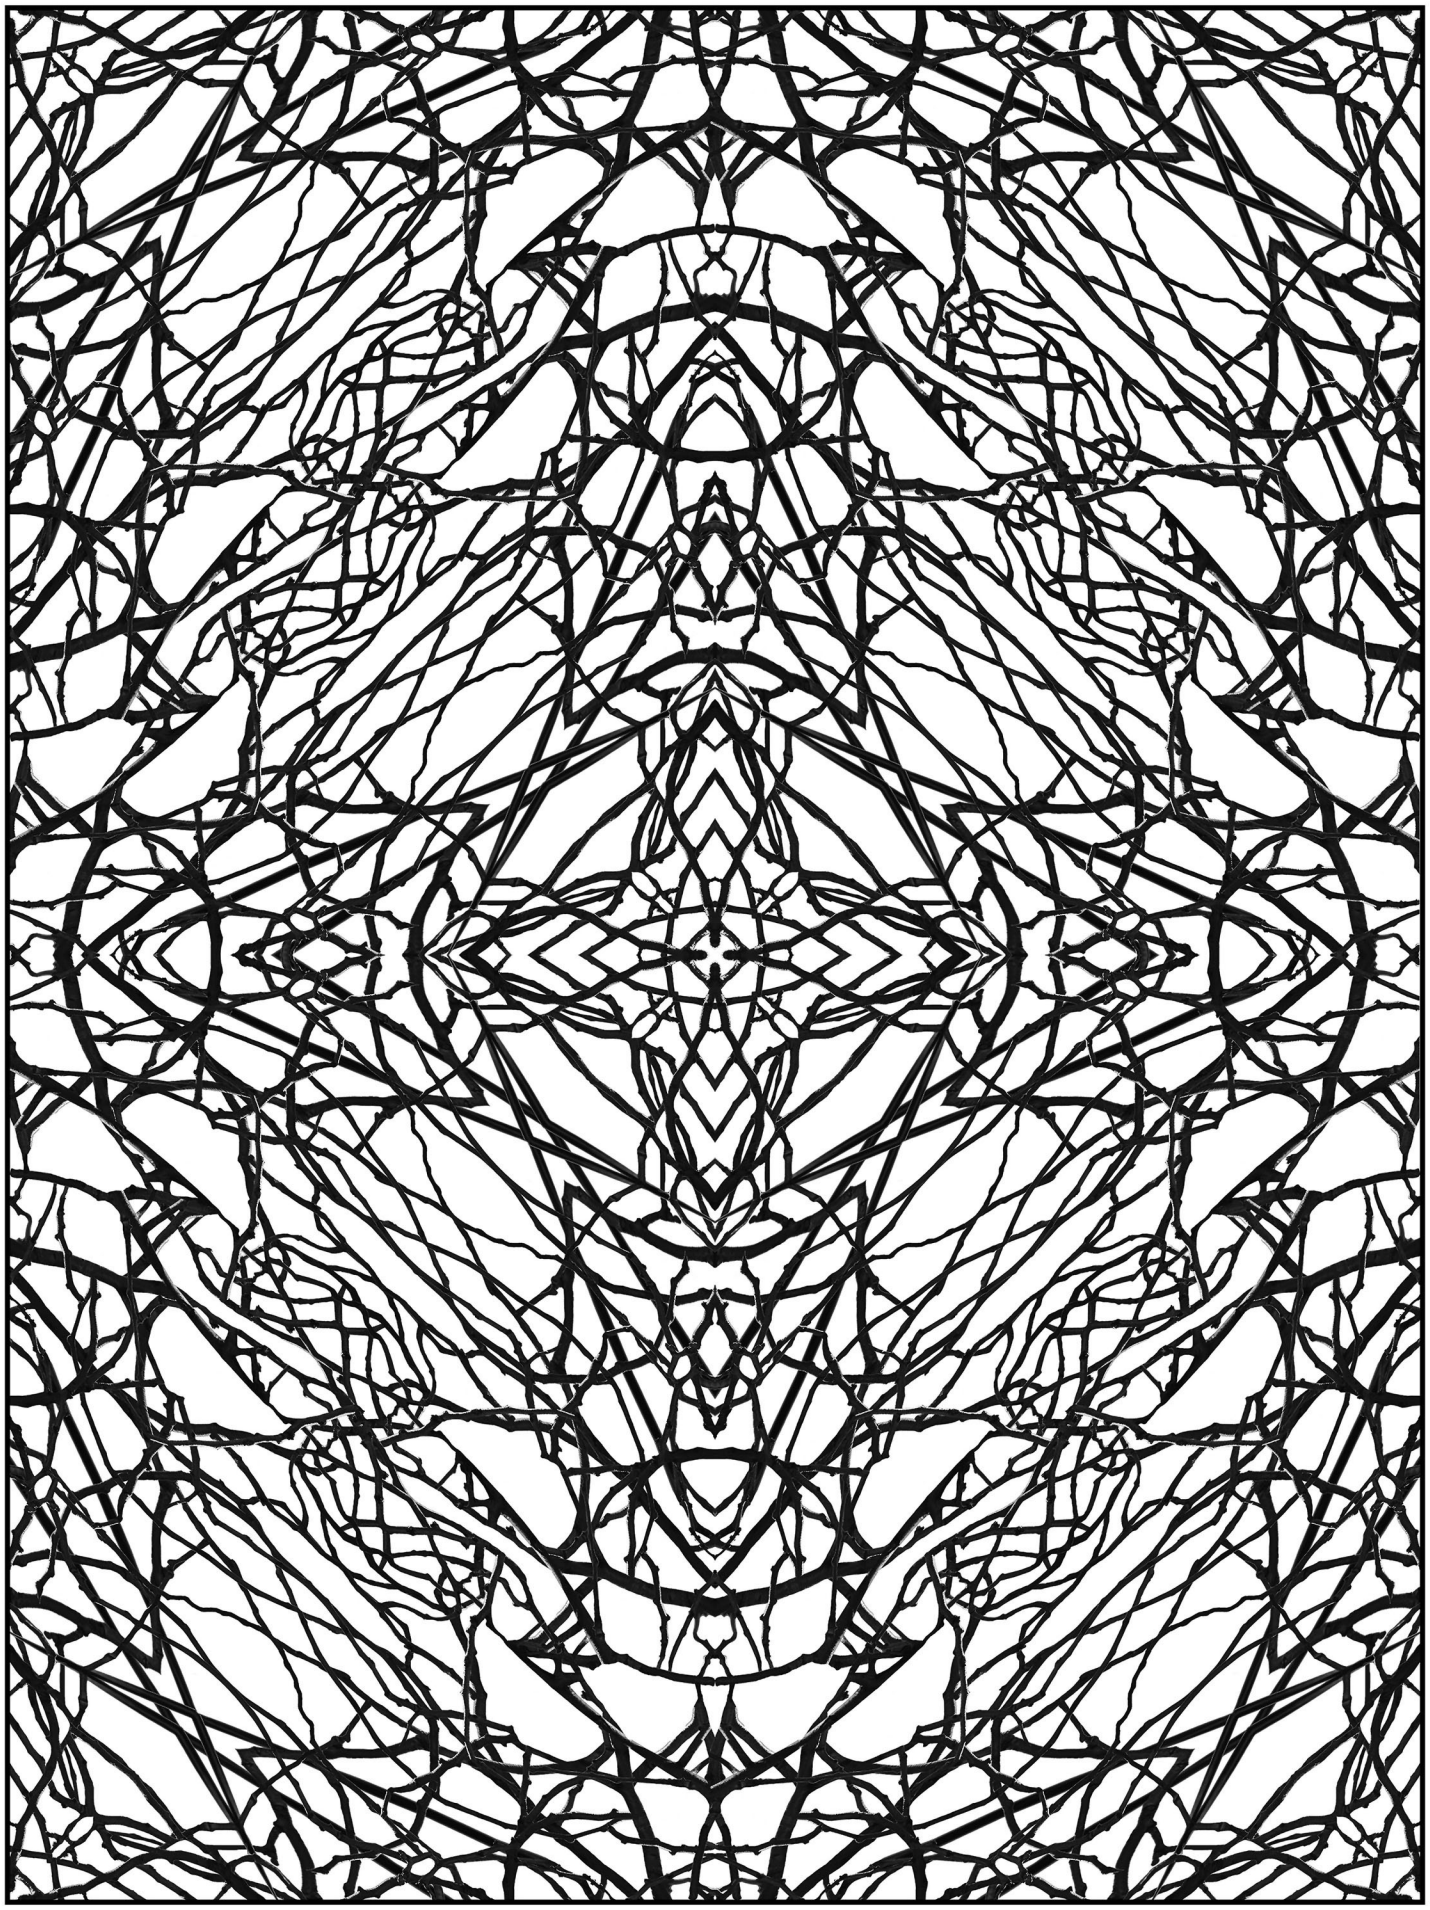


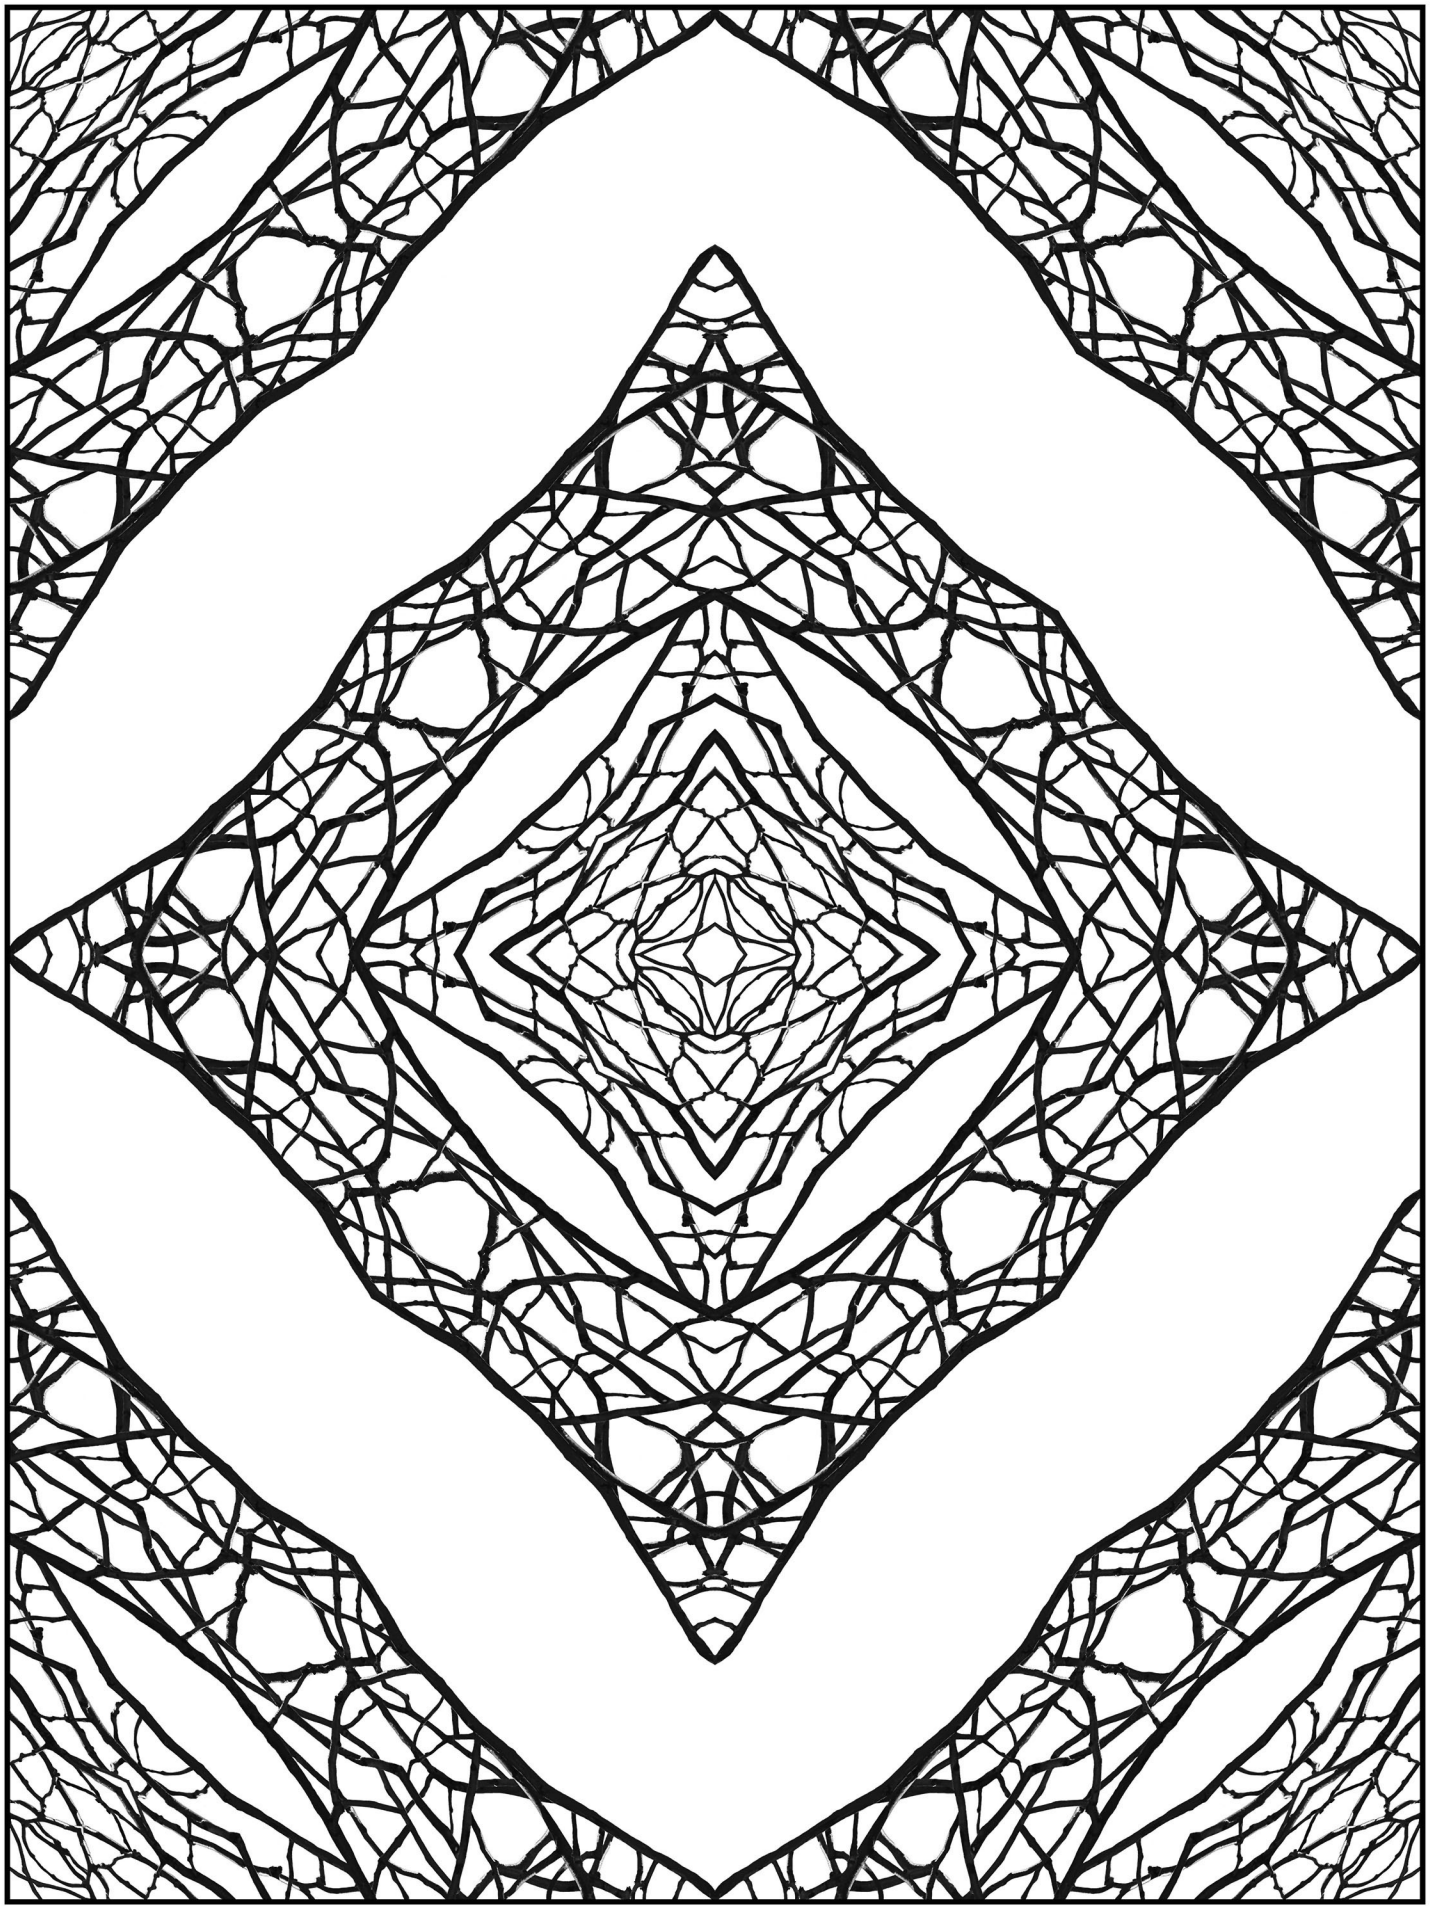












Happy coloring from me
and the trees!
